

Chairman Powell and the FCC:

We need to keep our local radio stations local. We are losing out unique local character in favor of large corporations and their 'to-the-highest-bidder' financially reimbursed agenda. Radio stations used to reflect the people of a community. Now they reflect what the corporate community would like the people to resemble. This is the last straw of corporate interference and control of free press, free idea, and freedom to express local preferences.

Sincerely,
